

ThoughtSpot University Content Syndication

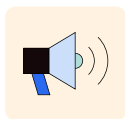

ThoughtSpot University Content Syndication allows you to seamlessly distribute ThoughtSpot University courses to your Learning Management System (LMS) without the need for large file transfers or content re-creation. This streamlined approach gives learners continuous access to the latest training courses, without the need for additional site access or login management.

Benefits of ThoughtSpot University Content Syndication

Seamless LMS Integration

Quickly and easily integrate ThoughtSpot University content into your existing LMS, providing an effortless learning experience for your users.

Access to the latest content

Learners always access the latest version of ThoughtSpot University content, including video walkthroughs, live exercises, reviews, and quizzes.

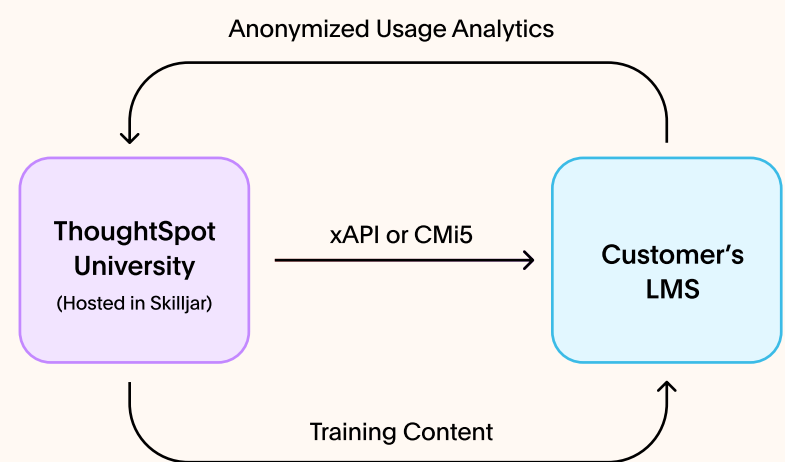

No additional logins or site access required

Eliminate the need for learners to create separate accounts or manage extra credentials, making it easy for them to access ThoughtSpot University content in a familiar environment.

How ThoughtSpot University Content Syndication works

- ThoughtSpot exports an xAPI or CMI5 zip file for each course to be syndicated and shares it with the customer. The zip files contain simple XML files that establish the connection between your LMS and ThoughtSpot University.
- Your LMS admin, in turn, creates a course or lesson in your LMS and imports the xAPI or CMI5 file.
- Your LMS admin then assigns the course to your users.

Content syndication process

It's that simple!

The course is then available for assigned users within your LMS, with no need for ThoughtSpot University credentials or additional work for the LMS admin.

Usage and completion statistics are available in your LMS, just like any other course in your library.

Pricing

The ThoughtSpot University Content Syndication services will be provided on a fixed price and fixed scope basis stated on the Order Form.

Customer Responsibilities and Resources

Customer acknowledges and agrees that: (a) ThoughtSpot's obligations relating to Consulting Services are conditioned and dependent upon Customer's timely fulfillment of its responsibilities as set forth in this Service Description, and (b) Customer's failure to timely fulfill its responsibilities may result in additional expenses and that any resulting delay in the Consulting Services or timelines will not be attributable to ThoughtSpot.
